

FAMILY FARM TRANSFERS

Saskatchewan Crop Insurance Corporation has procedures in place to assist family members with the transitioning of the farm between generations.

DETAILS

- If you are involved in a contract that involves one or more family members, you can use production records and experience credit obtained from the family farm for your own contract.
- Yield history, along with seeding intensity and experience discount, may be transferred directly to the new farmer having at least three years experience with the previous contract. This process is called a transfer of earned credits (TOEC).
- Young farmers without this experience, can have the transfer of contract experience phased in over three years. This process is called an intergenerational transfer.

For more information on the intergenerational contract process, contact your nearest Crop Insurance office, call 1-888-935-0000 or visit us online at saskcropinsurance.com.
